Agreement Shelving Issue Is Approved By Political Group

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) -The General Assembly's main political committee Thursday unanimously approved a U.S.-Soviet agreement shelving a disarmament debate until next fall with the prospect that private arms talks would start in July.

The agreement represented a victory for U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, who had been negotiating with the Russians since his appointment last January to drop the disarmament debate in an effort to avoid fruitless bickering.

No "Horse-Trade" Deal There was no agreement however, on the composition of an expert panel to resume private negotiations. President Kennedy has announced the United States would be ready for the talks "by August at the latest." Indications were that those outside-the-U.N.

talks would start sometime in July, probably in Geneva. American sources insisted that no "horse-trading" deal had been involved in Russia's agreement to forego a full-dress disarmament death sentence. debate here and now-an aim the Kremlin had insisted upon until Wednesday. Soviet Conditional Approval Of Laotian Truce Plan Likely

MOSCOW, Friday (UPI) - The Communist leaders of Europe said today they are strengthening the military power of the eightnation Warsaw treaty alliance because of "new military preparations" by the West.

A communique issued at the close of the two-day meeting did not say what these military measures were, and it dealt with other world issues only in a general

There have been hints in East Berlin that the conference might have discussed giving East Germany rockets, but there was no mention of this in the communique and no other confirmation of the reports in Moscow.

The Soviet and Eastern European leaders virtually ignored the Laotian and Congo crises and devoted much of the communique to a repetition of charges against West Germany, which they called "the major hotbed of war danger in Europe.'

The communique reiterated Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's call for general and complete disarmament, a halt to the arms race, and relaxation of international tensions

On Germany, it repeated previous Soviet demands for "concluding a peace treaty with both German states, and in this connection, rendering harmless the seat of danger in West Berlin by converting it into a demilitarized

Is Compromise Answer In Laos?

A real source of difficulty for the West in Laos is that most Laotians just want to be left alone in peace. The great mass of them are little concerned with politics. An estimated 90 per cent of Laotians are Buddhists, committed to the belief that it is wrong for the natives of a country to kill one another. Moreover, the literacy rate is less than 50 per cent; a vast majority of the nation's three million people have never heard of the cold war.

The terrain does not lend itself to other than guerrilla warfare. The tiny kingdom has no railroad and has only 3,450 miles of road. Of the four airfields still controlled by government forces, only one can accommodate fourengine transports. Indeed, some of the fears for the loss of Laos, on a purely strategic basis, may be unfounded. As military analyst Hanson W. Baldwin noted more than a year ago: "It would be a thankless military task, indeed, to use Laos as a base from which to conquer the rest of Southeast Asia. From the military point of view, therefore, the importance of Laos may have been exaggerated.

Laos is not a member of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization - the 1954 Geneva agreement forbade military alliances-but it is sheltered under SEATO's protective mantle. With this proviso, however: The Laotian government must specifically request aid of SEATO. So far the government has made no such request. For these reasons, we may yet wind up with a compromise embodying a considerable concession to the Soviet bloc. The settlement - unhappy thought - may resemble those in Korea and in

But, whatever the outcome, the main point is that we must not allow ourselves to be pushed around in the Far East, either by force of arms or by horse-trading at the negotiating table. Strategic importance aside, we cannot afford to let down any country to which we have made commitments.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Greatest Change

History for at least 4,000 years has been made The unfoldments of civilization in Asia and Europe were Northern. India, for instance, which represents a southern civilization and was most affected by Mongol and Persian influences; other parts of Southeast Asia definitely are of a basic Sinic civilization. The Arabs who moved into various areas of the African continent and gave evidence of high potentials originated, as did the Jews, in Mesopotamia. Exceptional to this generalization are such civilizing developments as the Aztecs and the Incas and such peoples in what we now call Latin America. Whether these peoples were indigenous or came from elsewhere is not known.

Today, we face a different situation. The emergence of the Black peoples of Africa to political equality among nations alters all situations in the world. It is a new phase in history and it is impossible to foretell the consequences of so sharp a disturbance of human

The principal factor in this situation is the United Nations which admits to membership countries of small population, economic competence, with no history of national self-government. This membership in the General Assembly of the United Nations is absolutely equal to that of the greatest nations. Thus, the actual voting in the United Nations represents a totally unrealistic situation.

Most of these new countries are geographical divisions marked on the map by European colonial powers. In their own lands, only tribal names are realistic. Let us take, as an example, the largest and the most stabilized of African countries, Nigeria. Its population is large, somewhere between 35,000,000 and 40,000,000 as compared with 14,000,000 for what is called the Congo and 5,000,000 for Ghana.

Nigeria consists of several hundred tribes, speaking that many languages, although English is the official tongue just as French is the official language of many of the new African countries. Whereas throughout this African region South of the Sahara, there are many tribal traditions and binding social customs, there is no national history

In the region South of the Sahara, no outstanding literature, no philosopher, no world religion has developed. Except for tribal fetiches and taboos, the only religion that has made real progress among any of these peoples is Islam. Since the 15th Century, Christians have come into the South of the Sahara world but they have made a comparatively small religious impress upon these peoples.

At any rate, although the Africans South of the Sahara have been in close relationship with European countries since the 15th Century, these peoples never entered the main stream of Western civilization. For two centuries, the Europeans trafficked in slavery, the tribal chiefs selling their own and kidnapped men, women and children into slavery. The middlemen were usually Arab slave merchants.

In the late 19th and the 20th Centuries European possessors of African states, conscious of their social responsibilities, opened schools and hospitals and established mission stations. Most of the present leaders of the various new African states were educated in these institutions, were often sent to European universities for their higher education. Some of these young Africans were sent to American universities, but they were few.

As a matter of fact, very few Africans South of the Sahara have any education of any kind. The few leaders are therefore remote from their own people, having come in contact with a life unknown to them. Nevertheless these states, no matter how small, how insignificant, how incapable of self-government and economic stability have equality with the United States in the General Assembly of the United Nations and united have an enormous voting power in that body.

A union of the small countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America can absolutely dominate the United Nations, pass resolutions damaging to the Great Powers and particularly damaging to the currently richest state, the United States of America.

This has been the essential danger of the United Nations since its origin and was discussed at the time. The danger is now climactic and only the United States and Soviet Russia can do much about it. Great Britain is occupied with problems relating to the downfall of the British Empire: France is still waterlogged by Algeria. The Africans are stepping upon the stage of universal history at an advantageous moment.

KENNEDY PROGRAM-Presi- medical help for the aged under dent John F. Kennedy's march toward the new frontier is being bogged down by, of all things, returning prosperity. Kennedy and his advisers are keenly aware of this, and are casting about for ways to kindle a sense of urgency on the part of Congress.

The President is getting fair co-operation from Capitol Hill on those parts of his program that have been tagged as "temporary anti-recession measures." He's also meeting a goodly degree of success in the speed-up of spending of money already available to government departments and agencies.

But Congress is showing a marked reluctance to go along with such permanent matters as financing the road-building program, providing aid to education,

Social Security, and the host of promises he made during the political campaign.

What's happening is simple. Senators and Congressmen are reluctant to commit themselves deeply when they feel that better times are just around the corner and don't require the kind of massive spending implicit in these programs. They're frankly stalling to see whether forecasts of an economic upturn will be confirm-

Meanwhile, Kennedy is doing all he can to convince legislators of the political wisdom of his recommended course. Beyond that, he'll have to wait, too, and see whether the voters back home can be persuaded to bring needed pressure on their representatives in Washington.

"Such programs advance spetific national purposes, and their relationship to the religious function of a church school is remote. Moreover, the requirement that such funds be repaid makes it unlikely that a church school will be enabled to free its own funds for religious purposes.'

Supporters of aid to Parochial schools by means of loans for construction now ask what is the difference between the purpose served by bricks and mortar in helping the general cause of education in parachial schools - both elementary and secondary - and the lending of money for equipment in teaching certain subjects in those same school buildings? For certainty in Parochial schools general education is taught in conformity with standards set by state governments, while religious instruction is separate and supplementary.

It is also being asked why the President, in his recent message to Congress, recommended approval of federal loans for construction purposes at colleges and universities operated by religious groups and didn't think this was unconstitutional, while he failed to give any approval to federal loans for construction of Parochial schools at the elementary and secondary level.

> Even more serious, Goldfine stopped paying income taxes about the time he began collecting big shots. He seemed to think that association with top men in government made him immune from the laws which others have to follow. And it's his income tax trial - recently postponed from March until May-which probably induced him to make a confes-

Prior to that, his svelte, efficient girl Friday, Mildred Paperman, had been deluging the VIP's who had been the recipients of Goldfine generosity with frantic phone calls. She would wake Sen. Styles Bridges late at night with desperate, threatening phone

"You've got to do something for Mr. B," she would scream. 'You're a big shot. You've got influence. Don't tell me that a Senator can't go down to the Justice Department and do something. You've got to do something for Mr. B after all he did for

A Republican Senator, however, doesn't have much influence in a Democratic Administration, and Sherman Adams today doesn't have any. Furthermore all the VIP's whom Goldfine once collected no longer want to be seen with him. They have run for

So the genial, ungrammatical, generous son of a Russian immigrant who called Sherman Adams 43 times in six months and once kept President Eisenhower waiting almost an hour while he haggled over a textile contract at the Pentagon, found himself friendless and alone. Being alone, he decided to share his grief with his former friends, the VIP's. He shared it by talking to the Justice Department

Here is the kind of relationship Goldfine enjoyed with the great and near great in the halcyon days of the Eisenhower Administration

When his daughter was married in Chicago, Goldfine insisted that Sherman Adams and Senator and Mrs. Cotton fly out to Chicago for the wedding.

"I want people to see who my friends are," he urged. "You've got to do this for me.

And shortly after Furcolo was elected Governor of Massa-

Again, when Cotton and his wife left on a trip to Panama and Mexico City, Goldfine had dinner with them in the Parker House in Boston and gave the Senator

Cotton at that time was attorney for the Goldfine Woolen Mills and a director of the corporation, so that his position was somewhat different from that of Sherman Adams or the others who had no professional connection. As long as Cotton, as a Senator, did no favors for Goldfine with the government or made no representations to the government on behalf of Goldfine, he had no conflict of interest.

Adams, however, was not in that position.

This is why the new Attorney General, Robert Kennedy, may have one of the hottest criminal cases in a good many years dumped into his lap.

The head hung. The eves closed. The muscles relaxed. Jesus had willed himself to die. It was the ninth hour-3 p. m.-and a suppressed sound went through the air. A breath of air bent the wild flowers. The earth trembled and a small crack split the big rock on which he was crucified and went east, splitting the earth beneath the Gate of Gennath and across Jerusalem and under the temple, where it tore the big inner veil.

The wind grew. The sky darkened. The birds became silent, 'Assuredly," said the centurion, "this man was the Son of God." He looked up at the body. The centurion had seen many of these. In Rome, as many as 6,000 a day had been crucified. There were no jails. There were no other penalties for lawbreakers.

The face, somehow, was composed. It retained the expression of compassion he had seen when they had nailed his wrists to the crossbeam and had raised him on ropes until the mortise in the crossbeam had been set onto the upright. The centurion had held the right foot over the left until the iron spike had been driven in.

They didn't usually die this quickly. Maybe, thought the centurion, the scourging had been too severe. Still, the soldier who had done the work was experienced. He had bent this man Tesus forward over a broken column and had thrust his wrists through iron rings. Then, slowly and by count, he had flicked the manytailed whip back and forth, starting with the head and working

The ends of each tail in the whip had bone and chain sewed into it. With each flick, flesh was picked from the victim in pieshaped wedges. The centurion shrugged. The crown of thorns could not have killed him so quickly. That had been intended as a joke anyway. Jesus had said he was a king; well, kings need crowns when they die.

The Roman heard the weeping and, in the gloom, he looked back and saw the little knot of people around the mother of this man. They were trying to console her, but they needed consolation too. Where were they when this man carried the crossbeam a half mile • from the pretorium to Golgotha? If they believed in him, why didn't they rescue him?

a beard. All of the believers in Jesus were Jews; there were thousands of them up and down the Jordan valley. Where were they? A stranger buried him. He was a high priest, a Sadducee, a member of the Great Sanhedrin.

His name is Joseph of Arimathia. For love, he donated his own tomb. Alone, he had gone to Pontius Pilate, the procurator, and asked for the body. It was an act of humility for a high priest to ask a favor of a Roman. Joseph had asked. And Pilate had nodded. On the way back, Joseph had met Nicodemus, a Pharisee.

Nicodemus had sent for a hundred pounds of spices with which to anoint the body. Joseph bought wide bands of linen as shrouds. They hurried, because at sundown the sabbath and the passover would begin. At Golgotha, John stood before the body. He searched the faces of the strangers and

The young man said he would help to take the body down. Joseph and Nicodemus accorded John the courtesy one would extend to grown men. No, they said, it would be better if he remained at the side of the mother. John insisted. The men took the body down and laid it on a flat rock. They bathed it.

They heard murmuring and looked up to see Mary of Alpheus and Mary Magdalen trying to dissuade the mother of Jesus from approaching. They couldn't. She came close, weeping. Joseph was wiping the face softly. He closed the eyes tight with his thumb. He tied a strip of linen over the head and under the jaws to keep the mouth closed.

Mary sat on the rock with her son. The men finished their work hastily. John and Nicodemus lifted the body, and Joseph rolled the linen underneath. They perfumed the body and rolled the linen around it. The arms were brought down; the legs straight-

A millstone 5 feet in diameter stood on an inclined gutter. The men lit tapers and set them in the walls. Joseph placed a feather under the nose of Jesus. It did not move. They left. The rolling stone was set in place.

Bed Rest Is Best Treatment For Hepatitis

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

It seems as though everyone has liver trouble. We hear this statement frequently, and although it is not true, the number of cases of infectious hepatitis has increased. There were more than 41,000 cases last year, approximately 77 per cent more than were reported in 1959.

The peak year was 1954, when 50,093 persons developed the disease. Infectious hepatitis seems to move in cycles of six or seven years. We may have had it in 1960 but the spurt occurred late in the year and there is evidence the indivdual feels achy, is tired that the epidemic will continue

Infectious hepititis has been with us for years and was known as catarrhal jauntice prior to World War II. The condition is easily diagnosed when the skin turns yellow (jaundice) but in some patients this obvious sign does not occur.

Joe Martin Could Nail Down Hot Corner Job With Chisox

By WALTER L. JOHNS Central Press Sports Editor

SARASOTA, Fla. - Joseph Clifton (better known as J. C.) Martin couldn't find a job as a carpenter this past winter but he is expected to nail down the third base job of the Chicago White Sox this season.

The third base job was left open. except for utility players, when Gene Freese was traded to Cincinnati and it is being handed to Martin, a 6-foot-2-inch Virginian who has had five years of minor league experience and is believed ready for the big time.

J. C. comes up from San Diego where he played in 142 games and hit .285, then seeing service in seven games with the White Sox in the September drive. Martin started his pro career with Holdrege, Neb., in 1956 and continued to move on up through Davenport, Dubuque, Duluth, Indianapolis and San Diego.

Over 100 Tire Dealers Convene Here

Over 100 dealers of the Cumberland District attended the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company's spring dealer meeting yesterday. It was the largest meeting in the history of the district. District dealers came from five states and the District of Columbia to hear and see the company's programs and plans for 1961. Letter J. Auker, Cumberland District manager, was host for the session which lasted all morning and concluded with lunch at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Speakers included G. B. Newman, president M. T. Powers, vice president-sales, and L. J. Thompson, North East Division manager. Pictured, left to right, are Mr. Auker, C. T. Cronin, of Cronin Sons, Baltimore: R. H. Duncan of Duncan Brothers, Winchester, Va., and Mr. Newman. Company spokesmen outlined the growing opportunities of the tire replacement market and detailed plans to capture an increasing share of the various markets.

Body, Vehicle Are Found In Dam Reservoir

Driver Missing Since Late Monday

The body of a 28-year-old Garrett County man and a pickup truck he had been driving were recovered yesterday afternoon from about 30 feet of water at Savage River Dam

The victim was identified as Thomas Lanch Morris who resided at Crab Tree in the Savage River Valley section of that coun-

An autopsy was performed yesterday at a local hospital, according to the deputy county medical examiner's office, which said a report should be available this

Authorities said the victim had been missing from his home since

The truck was located in the murky water by William R. Mc-Dowell, 8 Jones Street, Piedmont W. Va., a scuba diver. "Scuba" means self-contained underwater breathing apparatus.

The diver attached a line to the vehicle and it was pulled to the surface by a tow truck belonging to Reeves Motors of Westernport

Caretaker Found Clues

About 8:15 a. m. yesterday Harry Bittinger, caretaker at the control house of the dam, noticed a spare tire floating near the breast of the huge earthen dam located about four and a half miles above the confluence with the North Branch of the Potomac Bill To Expand River at Bloomington.

John Robert Martin of Western-port who was traveling along the Sales Tax Take Savage River Road above the dam noticed tire marks to the edge of the embankment and upon closer examination noticed that trees down over the steep embankment had been skinned of

Under the act, everybody who lives in or earns income in West Virginia and pays federal income taxes will be required to file a return with the West Virginia State Tax Department.

The tax is effective from January 1, 1961, and will amount to about six per cent of federal income tax payments. The West Virginia income tax will be approximately half of the Maryland income tax on the same
